

Biography

Zoubeida R. Dagher

Dr. Zoubeida R. Dagher is a professor of science education and a Faculty Fellow at the Center for Science, Ethics, and Public Policy, University of Delaware. She is currently the President-Elect of the International History and Philosophy of Science Teaching [IHPST] Group and has served in the past as elected member to the Board of Directors of the National Association for Research in Science Teaching [NARST]. Professor Dagher serves on the editorial boards of Science & Education and the International Journal of Science Education. She has coedited a book on science education in the Arab World, and has coauthored a recently published book on reconceptualizing the nature of science for science education. She is interested in integrating the nature of scientific and engineering knowledge, methods, and practices in science curriculum and instruction and has given invited talks and conference presentations in over 18 countries. Earlier in her career, professor Dagher has received the prestigious National Academy of Education/Spencer Postdoctoral Fellowship Award. She has been a visiting scholar at Curtin University of Technology, Australia, the Lebanese University, and the American University of Beirut; and has served as deputy dean at the College of Education at Qatar University in Doha, Qatar.